Graduates from Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training class 22-01, break their first pair of wings, during their graduation ceremony, Oct. 22, 2021, on Columbus Air Force Base, Miss. During a long-standing aviation tradition, pilots will keep one half of the broken wings and give the second half to a loved one. The two halves are never to be brought back together while the pilot is still alive.

SUPT class 22-01 graduates; new era begins

Class 22-01, the first fiscal year 2022 Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training class, graduated five aviators, four from allied forces, Oct. 22, 2021, on Columbus Air Force Base, Miss.

One facet of training at Columbus AFB is the international training program. Class 22-01 graduated two pilots from Saudi Arabia, one from Japan, and one from Uzbekistan.

U.S. Air Force Col. Seth Graham, 14th Flying Training Wing commander, shared his experience and advice to the newest aviators.

"You are here to do something noble," said Graham. "Remember that everyday your paycheck is a down payment on something in the future. You are not getting paid for what you do today. You are getting paid for what your country may ask you to do in the future."

These aviators have prevailed throughout 52 weeks of challenge.

Coronavirus Disease 2019

Department of the Air Force nears 97% AD vaccination rate

Staff Sgt. Elora J. McCutcheon
Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

WASHINGTON — Yesterday marked the Department of the Air Force's deadline for active duty component Airmen and Guardians to receive the COVID-19 vaccine. As of publication, nearly 97% of Airmen and Guardians on active duty have received at least one dose of the COVID-19 vaccine.

"Our Airmen need to be prepared to operate anytime, anywhere in the world," said Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. CQ Brown, Jr. "Getting vaccinated ensures we are a ready force to meet our commitments to the nation while protecting the health of our team and families."

Since the Secretary of Defense's mandate Aug. 24, the Department of the Air Force set the most aggressive timelines amongst the military services to ensure members are vaccinated.

"I am incredibly proud of our Airmen for coming together and getting vaccinated," said Chief Master Sgt. of the Air Force JoAnne S. Bass. "This is about readiness and ensuring our Air Force can continue to defend the homeland. It's also about understanding that we are not in the clear yet. Continuing safe practices to protect ourselves and others should always be in our cross-check."

The majority of the active component was vaccinated prior to the Aug. 24 mandate. After the mandate, installation Military Treatment Facilities rapidly scaled up vaccination efforts in order to meet the Nov. 2 deadline for the remainder of the force. Many MTFs stood up mass vaccination procedures capable of administering thousands of shots a day.

"Thank you to our active-duty Guardians and Airmen for moving out quickly to meet the Department's vaccine timeline," said Chief of Space Operations Gen. John W. "Jay" Raymond. "Although we are encouraged by the falling number of cases, COVID-19 is still a very real threat. We need each and every one of you to be healthy and ready; we need you and your loved ones to be protected so our team can continue to protect and defend the nation."

Chief Master Sgt. of the Space Force Roger A. Towberman echoed DAF senior leadership appreciation for all those who got vaccinated, as well as those who made it possible – to include DAF medical personnel who worked tirelessly to vaccinate nearly 100,000 Airmen and Guardians in just over two months.

"I am incredibly proud of our Airmen for coming together and getting vaccinated," said Chief Master Sgt. of the Air Force JoAnne S. Bass. "This is about readiness and ensuring our Air Force can continue to defend the homeland. It's also about understanding that we are not in the clear yet. Continuing safe practices to protect ourselves and others should always be in our cross-check."

"This took leadership and teamwork at all levels," Towberman said. "I'm proud of our Guardians for their commitment to our readiness and each other, and thankful for all our Airmen enablers who made this happen."

Over the next 30 days, DAF will review requests for medical exemptions and religious accommodations. DAF civilians have until Nov. 22 to be fully vaccinated, and Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve members in a Reserve component status must be vaccinated by Dec. 2.

COVID-19 screening testing will be required at least weekly for all individuals entering a DoD facility who are not fully vaccinated, including those who have an exemption request under review, or who are exempted from COVID-19 vaccination.

Units will be responsible for running self-test programs and can reach out to either the Defense Logistics Agency Contact Center or their servicing MTF for assistance with ordering and purchasing the self-test kits. Additional guidance will be forthcoming through command channels.

14th MDG presents at National Pharmacy Conference

Airman 1st Class Jessica Haynie
14th Flying Training Wing Public Affairs

U.S. Air Force Capt. Gregory Correale, 14th Medical Group Pharmacy element chief, and Staff Sgt. Joanna Sanchez, 14th MDG non-commissioned officer in charge of pharmacy services, presented posters comprised of analytics for pharmacy operations at the virtual National Pharmacy Conference, Oct. 24-26, 2021.

The presentations were given in light of the 14th MDG pharmacy operating at compliancy levels higher than Air Force and DoD averages.

“When we first started in September we were at zero percent compliancy, then during October we were at thirty percent,” said Correale. “Slowly we made our way into the 90’s and even hit 100 percent a few times. We maintained a ninety percent compliance or higher for a while now.”

The poster presented by Correale showcased the compliancy of the pharmacies use of the Carepoint Patient Look-Up Tool within the 14th MDG.

“About two years ago the Defense Health Agency pushed out a requirement that every pharmacy within the Department of Defense will start using this tool,” said Correale “The tool is a DoD website that lets you look up patient informa-

BACKGROUND

- Nearly 500,000 Americans have died from an opioid overdose from 1999-2019^{1,3}
- Nearly 247,000 of those opioid overdoses were from prescription opioids^{1,3}
- Naloxone dispensing is a cost effective and proven intervention to prevent overdose deaths and adverse patient outcomes

OBJECTIVE

Initiate and sustain a workflow to screen patients using the Carepoint patient look up tool to assess risk of respiratory depression and prescribe naloxone as appropriate, as directed by DHA-PI 6025.07 and the Medical Group’s strategic plan.²

METHODS/PROCESS TIMELINE

RESULTS

Date Range	16 Oct 20 – 11 Sep 21
Naloxone Dispensed	66
Opiate Rx’s	756
Opiate Rx’s Checked	530 (70%)
Patients Dispensed Opiates	372

90% of missed Rx’s occurred in the first 6 months of implementation
No patients denied naloxone offered by the pharmacy
98% of naloxone dispensed by the pharmacy was prescribed by a 14 MDG pharmacist
Only 2 naloxone prescriptions were dispensed in the year prior to implementation

CONCLUSIONS

- Pharmacists and pharmacy technicians are critical to the safe use of medications and can take charge to bolster safety programs aimed at preventing opiate overdoses.
- Leveraging both a standing order and technology innovations like the Carepoint patient look up tool expands patient safety without creating a bottleneck at the pharmacy or additional burden on providers’ offices and could serve as a model for other outpatient settings.
- Lessons learned for other MTFs:
 - Easy access to the Carepoint tool is a game changer for frontline staff
 - Work with your Systems/IMIT teams to add access to workstations or consider a network computer switch or network laptop for look-ups
 - Incorporate a double check or QC into the process through your workflow
 - Opiate fills are what are tracked, not Rx’s (refills and non-comps show up in metrics)
 - Carepoint does not reflect real-time data, clinical judgement may still indicate naloxone dispensing

Naloxone is a prescription used to rapidly reverse an opioid overdose. Naloxone can quickly restore normal breathing that has slowed or stopped due to an overdose.

According to Correale's poster, from 1999 to 2019, nearly 500,000 Americans have died from an opioid overdose. Approximately fifty percent of those overdoses were prescription medication.

The poster presented by Sanchez showcased a significant decline in return to stock numbers. The pharmacy purchased a new system that notifies patients once their medicine ready for pick-up, further enhancing communication between the agency and its customers.

"Last year with a big COVID hit here in Mississippi we were struggling to communicate with our patients as to when their prescriptions would be ready," said Sanchez. Columbus Air Force Base's First Four organization, comprised of Airmen E4 and below, have recently been working with residences on the base to teach junior Airman in the dorms how to cook and grill various food.

The most recent instructor was Nicholas Ward, an Air Force Veteran, who is now working Civil Service as a Radar, Airfield and Weather Systems technician.

Ward served six and a half years before he was medically discharged due to a back injury, however, he has continued to serve the for the past 11 years on the civilian side.

"I went into the Air Force committed to staying in and retiring after 20 years," said Ward. "Once it was clear I could no longer be active duty and was discharged, I starting looking for Civil Service jobs. I really didn't look anywhere other than the Air Force. I love the culture and the comrade."

Ward said he lived in the single Airman dorms during his time as active duty and knows how challenging it can be when no one knows how to cook.

"I have always loved cooking so when it was brought up to me whether or not I would be willing to teach a class, I was all in," said Ward. "I love to share my passion with other people. If there is anyone willing to learn, I'll gladly teach them."

Ward has not only teamed up with other civilians to cook for the squadrons, but has also catered in a squadron event.

"I have been to both of Mr. Ward's grilling classes and appreciate the time and effort he took to teach us," said Airman 1st Class Alex Patterson, 14th Mission Support Group Financial Management technician. "In the first class we learned how to properly grill various cuts of beef and chicken. He was very informative and I took a lot away from the class, including good food."

Many Airman living in Unaccompanied Enlisted Quarters (UEQ's) are experiencing living on their own for the first time. Ward not only offers to teach classes, but also gives advice on how to save money while grocery shopping.

The veteran used his prior experience as an Airman on a budget and taught the importance of how to make use of a product in multiple ways, such as, buying bone-in, skin-on, chicken thighs. He further explained

"We have a legacy to live up to here at Laughlin," said Col. Craig Prather, 47th Flying Training Wing commander. "To live up to it, we're integrating proven methods with advanced capabilities, technology and quality instruction to prepare our newest pilots for whatever may get thrown their way in the future."

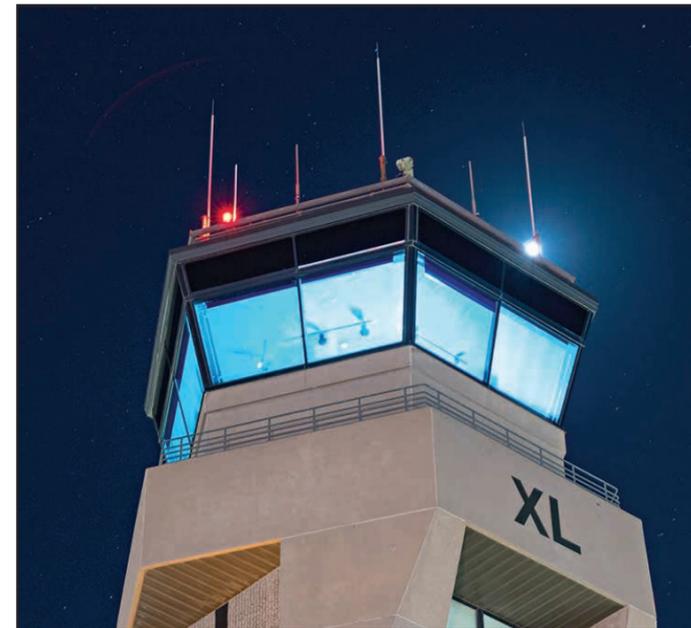

The training environment allows Airmen to outperform, out think, and out innovate competitors when they head to operational units. Through it all, dedicated instructors have demonstrated leadership by example to develop America's sons and daughters while ensuring that the Air Force's newest aviators are second to none.

Both AETC and Laughlin have contributed to the Air Force's story of air dominance throughout the years. Undoubtedly, both will continue penning chapters for many years to come.

“Today, AETC continues to build on its incredible heritage as the First Command, marked by exceptional Airmen and dedicated professionals who are ready to perform the mission anywhere, anytime,” said Lt. Gen. Brad Webb, commander of AETC.

LAUGHLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Texas — Every year, hundreds of U.S. Air Force pilots earn their wings and embark on a journey to stake their claim in the pages of history. For 80 years, each and every pilots’ story has started from within the Air Education Training Command.

Laughlin Air Force Base, one of 12 installations within the major command, has been training pilots for nearly 50 of the 80 years since the MAJCOM’s activation Jan. 23, 1942. Together, working hand in hand, AETC and Laughlin train the best pilots America and her allies have to offer.

“Today, AETC continues to build on its incredible heritage as the First Command, marked by exceptional Airmen and dedicated professionals who are ready to perform the mission anywhere, anytime,” said Lt. Gen. Brad Webb, commander of AETC.

The future of our Air Force begins with the foundation that was laid in 1942. Throughout everyone’s Air Force career, they will spend time in AETC learning not only their job, but also what it means to be a United States Airman.

“Multi-capable Airmen have an agile mindset, can understand commander intent and mission type orders and possess the wherewithal to move out and be successful,” Webb said. “Therefore, aspects like empowerment, initiative, analytical and critical thinking and speed, all become very important for our Airmen.”

Airpower may have started in the First Command, but Laughlin has certainly perfected the process over the last 50 years, having become the command’s number one pilot producing machine. Over 300 newly-minted pilots leave Del Rio each year and try to follow the footsteps of such revered Laughlin

BLAZE Hangar Tails: HH-60G Pave Hawk

Mission

The primary mission of the HH-60G Pave Hawk helicopter is to conduct day or night personnel recovery operations into hostile environments to recover isolated personnel during war. The HH-60G is also tasked to perform military operations other than war, including civil search and rescue, medical evacuation, disaster response, humanitarian assistance, security cooperation/aviation advisory, NASA space flight support, and rescue command and control.

Features

The Pave Hawk is a highly modified version of the Army Black Hawk helicopter which features an upgraded communications and navigation suite that includes integrated inertial navigation/global positioning/Doppler navigation systems, satellite communications, secure voice, and Have Quick communications.

All HH-60Gs have an automatic flight control system, night vision goggles with lighting and forward looking infrared system that greatly enhances night low-level operations. Additionally, Pave Hawks have color weather radar and an engine/rotor blade anti-ice system that gives the HH-60G an adverse weather capability.

Pave Hawk mission equipment includes a retractable in-flight refueling probe, internal auxiliary fuel tanks, two crew-served 7.62mm or .50 caliber machineguns, and an 8,000-pound (3,600 kilograms) capacity cargo hook. To improve air transportability and shipboard operations, all HH-60Gs have folding rotor blades.

Pave Hawk combat enhancements include a radar warning receiver, infrared jammer and a flare/chaff countermeasure dispensing system.

HH-60G rescue equipment includes a hoist capable of lifting a 600-pound load (270 kilograms) from a hover height of 200 feet (60.7 meters), and a personnel locating system that is compatible with the PRC-112 survival radio and provides range and bearing information to a survivor’s location.

Pave Hawks are equipped with an over-the-horizon tactical data receiver that is capable of receiving near real-time mission update information.

Background

The Pave Hawk is a twin-engine medium-lift helicopter operated by Air Combat Command, Pacific Air Forces, Air Education and Training Command, U.S. Air Forces in Europe, Air National Guard and Air Force

Reserve Command.

Pave Hawks have a long history of use in contingencies, starting in Operation Just Cause. During Operation Desert Storm they provided combat search and rescue coverage for coalition forces in western Iraq, coastal Kuwait, the Persian Gulf and Saudi Arabia. They also provided emergency evacuation coverage for U.S. Navy SEAL teams penetrating the Kuwaiti coast before the invasion.

During Operation Allied Force, Pave Hawks provided continuous combat search and rescue coverage for NATO air forces, and successfully recovered two Air Force pilots who were isolated behind enemy lines.

In the aircraft’s humanitarian relief missions, three Pave Hawks deployed in March 2000 to Mozambique, Africa, to support international flood relief operations. The HH-60s flew 240 missions in 17 days and delivered more than 160 tons of humanitarian relief supplies.

After Hurricane Katrina in September 2005, more than 20 active-duty, Reserve, and National Guard Pave Hawks were deployed to Jackson, Miss., in support of recovery operations in New Orleans and surrounding areas. Pave Hawk crews flew 24-hour operations for nearly a month, saving more than 4,300 Americans from the post-hurricane devastation.

Within 24 hours of the earthquake and tsunami in Japan, HH-60Gs deployed to support Operation Tomodachi providing search and rescue capability to the disaster relieve

Today, Pave Hawks continue to deploy in support of operations in Afghanistan, Iraq and Libya. HH-60 crews have aided hundreds of American, coalition, and foreign-national personnel by conducting personnel recovery and medical evacuations or MEDEVAC missions under low visibility, low illumination conditions at all altitudes.

Thirteen officers have prevailed during a year of training, earning the right to become Air Force pilots.

Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 22-02 graduates at 11 a.m. today during a ceremony at the Kaye Auditorium.

Students will receive their silver pilot's wings at the ceremony, and students who excelled in their respective training tracks will be recognized.

Capt. Daniel Bubb received the Air Education and Training Command Commander's Trophy for being the most outstanding student overall in his classes.

The Air Force Association Award was presented to 1st Lt. Alexander Colón who excelled in training and typified the tenets of the association; promoting aerospace power and a strong national defense.

cross country navigation flying.

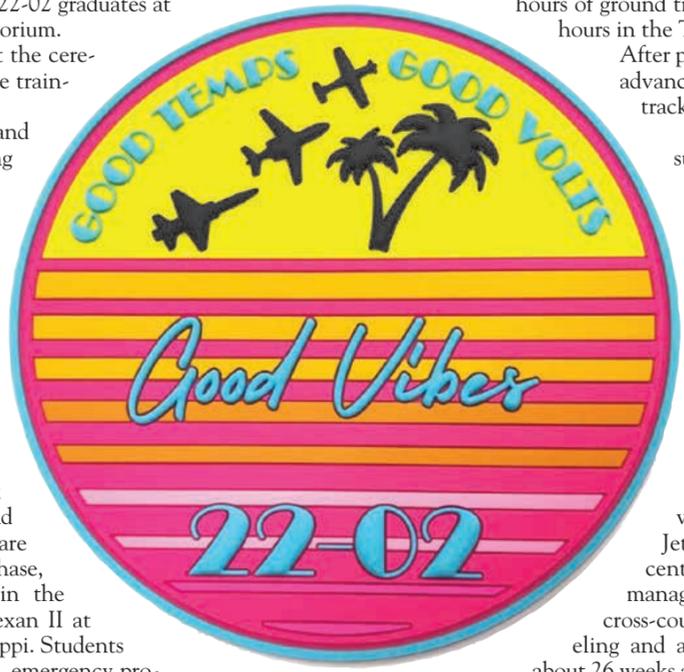

Primary training takes approximately 23 weeks and includes 254.4 hours of ground training, 27.3 hours in the flight simulator and 89 hours in the T-6A aircraft.

After primary training, students select, by order of merit, advanced training in the fighter-bomber or airlift-tanker track.

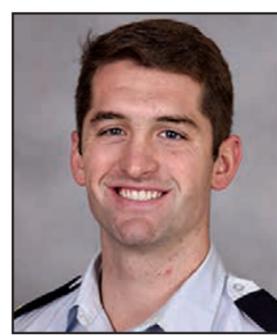

Both tracks are designed to best train pilots for successful transition to their follow-on aircraft and mission.

Advanced training for the fighter track is done in the T-38C Talon, a tandem-seat, twin-engine supersonic jet. T-38 training emphasizes formation, advanced aerobatics and navigation. Training takes approximately 26 weeks and includes 381 hours of ground training, 31.6 hours in the flight simulator and 118.7 hours in the T-38C aircraft.

The airlift-tanker track uses the T-1A Jayhawk, the military version of a multi-place Beech Jet 400 business jet. Instruction centers on crew coordination and management, instrument training, cross-country flying and simulated refueling and airdrop missions. Training takes about 26 weeks and includes 185 hours of ground training, 53.6 hours in the flight simulator and 76.4 hours in the T-1A.
