Department of the Air Force reaches 95% Total Force vaccination rate

Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

WASHINGTON — Dec. 2 marked the Department of the Air Force's deadline for Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve Airmen to receive the COVID-19 vaccine.

This final deadline for Department of the Air Force service members to be fully vaccinated resulted in more than 95% of the total force having at least one COVID-19 vaccine dose.

"Thank you to each total force Airman who has met the responsibility to get vaccinated," said Secretary of the Air Force Frank Kendall. "To those yet to get vaccinated, the order is clear—take action now or be held accountable for failing to do so. This is about being ready to defend the nation, as well as protecting ourselves, our teammates, and our loved ones."

Since the Secretary of Defense's vaccination mandate Aug. 24, the Department of the Air Force set the most aggressive timelines amongst the military services to ensure total force members are protected.

"The health and wellbeing of our Reserve citizen Airmen is a readiness issue," said Lt. Gen. Richard Scobee, chief of the Air Force Reserve and commander of the Air Force Reserve Command. "By meeting this deadline, our Airmen are ready to execute the mission anywhere in the world, even in places where the COVID-19 vaccination rates are low and disease transmission is high."

Across the nation, Guard and Reserve Airmen were directly involved in administering vaccines to their active component and civilian counterparts as each respective deadline approached.

"By taking an aggressive approach to vaccination, we are ensuring the health and readiness of the force," said Under Secretary of the Air Force Gina Ortiz Jones. "Ultimately, we have to overcome this pandemic that's taken the lives of over 700,000 of our fellow Americans. We've got to be mission ready—we've got to be vaccinated."

COVID-19 screening tests are required weekly for all individuals entering a Department of Defense facility who are not fully vaccinated, including those who have an exemption request under review or who are exempted from the COVID-19 vaccination.

"The health and wellbeing of our Reserve citizen Airmen is a readiness issue," said Lt. Gen. Richard Scobee, chief of the Air Force Reserve and commander of the Air Force Reserve Command. "By meeting this deadline, our Airmen are ready to execute the mission anywhere in the world, even in places where the COVID-19 vaccination rates are low and disease transmission is high."

"Being vaccinated maintains our total force readiness that our nation depends on," said Lt. Gen. Michael A. Loh, Air National Guard director. "This vaccine ensures our success with our national defense missions. By taking this aggressive approach for vaccination, we are able to protect those around us, and maintain a ready and able force."

Units will be responsible for running self-test programs and may reach out to either the Defense Logistics Agency Contact Center or their servicing Military Treatment Facility for assistance with ordering and purchasing the self-test kits.

Beneath the aircraft's nose is a photo of the 1965 naming ceremony of a Vance AFB aircraft, also called "The City of Enid," with then mayor Leon Cook, and Vance commander, Col. James Little.

originally founded as Air Corps Basic Flying School, Enid, Oklahoma. The base officially became the Enid Army Flying School Feb. 11, 1942. Months later the Army changed the name to Enid Army Air Field. Then, Enid AFB became Vance AFB on July 9, 1949.

This year, Vance members celebrated the wing's 80th anniversary Sept. 17 at Woodring Regional Airport. Members showcased training aircraft with new heritage paint schemes, invited a couple hundred friends and family, rolled in food trucks, bouncy houses and outfitted a local hangar for a 1940s themed dance.

Today, the 71st Flying Training Wing's mission is to deliver world-class pilots, develop resilient Airmen and families, deploy ready Airmen and demonstrate the "Vance Proud" culture. Vance members are responsible for training Air Force student pilots for worldwide deployment and aerospace expeditionary force support.

For Vance's anniversary event, special guests, friends and neighbors from the community attended. Among the guests was Nicholas Vance Matthews, the great grandson of Lt. Col. Leon Robert Vance Jr., whom the base was named after.

Colonel Vance was an Enid native who posthumously received the Medal of Honor for gallantry in action over France in June 1944.

Col. Jay Johnson, the 71st FTW commander, was the key speaker at the anniversary celebration. "I'm humbled to stand before you as the 59th commander of Vance Air Force Base, representing the 2,600 Airmen, civilians and contractors that make up Team Vance," he said.

Johnson thanked the City of Enid and the airport's officials for their decades-long partnerships and he pointed out that Vance aircraft touch down at the airport more than 35,000 times each year.

"The spirit of innovation and ingenuity lives on at Vance AFB as we make the largest changes to pilot training that we've made in 30 years," said Johnson. "As we look to the future of aviation and continue to innovate, we remember those who paved the way for us, and we don't forget that we stand on the shoulders of giants."

A prime example of that spirit of innovation happened April 2 this year when the first student pilots graduated Undergraduate Pilot Training 2.5.

Vance members have been working on this type of training since 2018 when the base tested a prototype of UPT 2.5. The new training is one of the pilot training transformation initiatives that changes up the traditional syllabus used for the past 50 years and modernizes training with 360-degree virtual reality trainers and student-centric instruction.

Vance's original mission was quite different and the wing traces its roots back to Aug. 18, 1948, when the War Department activated the wing as the 71st Tactical Reconnaissance Wing, assigned to the 1st Air Division at Kadana Air Base, Okinawa. The wing performed photographic reconnaissance, providing intelligence on Japanese troop concentrations, shore defenses, installations, supply routes, and shipping. The 71st TRW also produced maps of allied and enemy-held territory and prepared navigation charts.

Today, Vance has about 1,400 active duty and reserve military, plus more than 1,500 family members living in the local area. The base also employs more than 1,400 federal civil service employees, non-appropriated fund civilian employees and contractors. There are over 3,000 retired military members in the local area.

Today, its members are responsible for over 200 aircraft, fly more than 50,000 sorties annually and log more than 74,000 flying hours in the T-1A Jayhawk, T-6A Texan II and T-38C Talon. More than 300 U.S. Air Force and allied student pilots graduate from pilot training at Vance each year.

City of Montgomery and Maxwell AFB honor Rosa Parks' arrest anniversary

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — The City of Montgomery and Maxwell AFB commemorated the 66th anniversary of the Montgomery bus boycott by dedicating a memorial to Rosa Parks Dec. 1, 2021.

The dedication took place outside the Troy University Rosa Parks Museum in downtown. The sculpture stands where she was arrested and Rosa Parks' lawyer, Mr. Fred Gray helped dedicate the sculpture.

It is a replica of the sculpture dedicated on Maxwell Air Force Base on 1 December 2020. The two sculptures reflect how Rosa Parks' service on Maxwell inspired her actions in Montgomery, strengthening the base community partnerships and progressing Montgomery's social justice.

"She was not tired, she was tired of giving in," said Col. Eries Mentzer, 42nd Air Base Wing commander who reflected on the honor of serving in the Birthplace of the Civil Rights Movement. "Tired of giving in to injustice and the systematic shielding of perpetrators. Her moral courage in that moment sparked a movement that changed Montgomery and our nation for the better. Mrs. Rosa Parks' commitment to equality and inclusion for all, while risking her own personal safety and prosperity, continues to serve as an inspiration."

Parks, who worked at Maxwell Field's guest house in the 1940s, later credited her experience at the racially-integrated federal facilities and riding the integrated trolleys on Maxwell with showing her a world without the discriminatory policies, known as Jim Crow laws that were common in the South.

"You might just say Maxwell opened my eyes up," said Parks in her memoirs. "It was an alternative to the ugly policies of Jim Crow."

On Dec. 1, 1955, Parks was arrested for refusing to give up her seat on a city bus in protest of segregated transportation in Montgomery. Her civil disobedience prompted a citywide bus

BLAZE Hangar Tails: E-3 Sentry (AWACS)

Mission

The E-3 Sentry is an airborne warning and control system, or AWACS, aircraft with an integrated command and control battle management, or C2BM, surveillance, target detection, and tracking platform. The aircraft provides an accurate, real-time picture of the battlespace to the Joint Air Operations Center. AWACS provides situational awareness of friendly, neutral and hostile activity, command and control of an area of responsibility, battle management of theater forces, all-altitude and all-weather surveillance of the battle space, and early warning of enemy actions during joint, allied, and coalition operations.

Features

As an air defense system, E-3s can detect, identify and track airborne enemy forces far from the boundaries of the United States or NATO countries. It can direct fighter-interceptor aircraft to these enemy targets. Experience has proven that the E-3 Sentry can respond quickly and effectively to a crisis and support worldwide military deployment operations. AWACS may be employed alone or horizontally integrated in combination with other C2BM and intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance elements of the Theater Air Control System. It supports decentralized execution of the air tasking order/air combat order. The system provides the ability to find, fix, track and target airborne or maritime threats and to detect, locate and ID emitters. It has the ability to detect threats and control assets below and beyond the coverage of ground-based command and control or C2, and can exchange data with other C2 systems and shooters via datalinks.

With its mobility as an airborne warning and control system, the Sentry has a greater chance of surviving in warfare than a fixed, ground-based radar system. Among other things, the Sentry's flight path can quickly be changed according to mission and survival requirements. The E-3 can fly a mission profile approximately 8 hours without refueling. Its range and on-station time can be increased through in-flight refueling and the use of an on-board crew rest area.

Background

There are 31 aircraft in the U.S. inventory. Air Combat Command has 27 E-3s at Tinker. Pacific Air Forces has four E-3 Sentries at Kadena AB, Japan and Elmendorf AFB, Alaska.

As proven in operations Desert Storm, Allied Force, Enduring Freedom, Iraqi Freedom, and Odyssey Dawn/Unified Protector the E-3 Sentry is the world's premier C2BM aircraft. AWACS aircraft and crews were instrumental to the successful completion of operations Northern and Southern Watch, and are still engaged in operations Noble Eagle and Enduring Freedom. They provide radar surveillance and control in addition to providing senior leadership with time-critical information on the actions of enemy forces. The E-3 has also been deployed to support humanitarian relief operations in the U.S. following Hurricanes Rita and Katrina, coordinating rescue efforts between military and civilian authorities.

The data collection capability of the E-3 radar and computer subsystems allowed an entire air war to be recorded for the first time in the history of aerial warfare.

In March 1996, the Air Force activated the 513th Air Control Group, an AWACS Reserve Associate Program unit which performs duties on active-duty aircraft.

During the spring of 1999, the first AWACS aircraft went through the Radar System Improvement Program. RSIP is a joint U.S./NATO development program that involved a major hardware and software intensive modification to the existing radar system. Installation of RSIP enhanced the operational capability of the E-3 radar electronic counter-measures and has improved the system's reliability, maintainability and availability.

Department of the Air Force releases COVID-19 policy

Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

WASHINGTON — The Department of the Air Force released its policy today outlining the way forward for Total Force military members serving in the Air Force and Space Force who have requested separation or retirement prior to Nov. 2, 2021, or whose COVID-19 medical exemption or religious accommodation was denied.

For those who refused to obey a lawful order to receive the COVID-19 vaccine, commanders will continue to take appropriate administrative and disciplinary actions consistent with law and Department of the Air Force policy. Additionally, this will result in the member being subject to initiation of administrative discharge proceedings and service characterization will be governed by the applicable Department of the Air Force Instructions.

Service members separated due to refusal of the COVID-19 vaccine will not be eligible for involuntary separation pay and will be subject to recoupment of any unearned special or incentive pays, according to Department of the Air Force officials.

Supplemental Coronavirus Disease 2019 Vaccination Policy can be found at https://www.af.mil/Portals/1/documents/2021SAF/12_Dec/Supplemental_Coronavirus_Disease_2019_Vaccination_Policy.pdf.

Unvaccinated Airmen and Guardians who submitted a request to retire or separate prior to Nov. 2, 2021, with a retirement or separation date on or before April 1, 2022, may be granted an administrative exemption from the COVID-19 vaccination requirement until their separation date.

Unvaccinated Airmen or Guardians with a request for medical exemption or religious accommodation are temporarily exempt from the COVID-19 vaccination requirement while their request is under review.

— Members who receive a denial of their medical exemption or religious accommodation have five calendar days from denial of their request to do one of the following:

1. Begin a COVID-19 vaccination regimen. If the service member indicates their intent is to begin the vaccination regimen, commanders may use their discretion to adjust the five-day timeline based on local COVID-19 vaccination supplies;

2. Submit an appeal to the final appeal authority for a religious accommodation request or request a second opinion for medical exemptions. If a final appeal is denied, the service member will have five calendar days from notice of denial to begin the COVID-19 vaccination regimen;

3. If able, based upon the absence of or a limited Military Service Obligation, and consistent with opportunities afforded service members prior to Nov. 2, 2021, request to separate or retire on or before April 1, 2022, or no later than the first day of the fifth month following initial or final appeal denial.

— Service members who continue to refuse to obey a lawful order to receive the COVID-19 vaccine after their exemption request/final appeal has been denied or retirement/separation has not been approved will be subject to administrative discharge. Discharge characterization will be governed by the applicable Department of the Air Force Instructions.

Commanders will ensure all unvaccinated service members comply with COVID-19 screening and testing requirements and applicable safety standards. Leaders should continue to counsel all unvaccinated individuals on the health benefits of receiving the COVID-19 vaccine.

boycott, a watershed event in the civil rights movement.

In 2020, on the 65th anniversary of Parks' arrest, Air Force and Montgomery leaders honored Rosa Parks with a memorial designed by Montgomery native and Air Force Civilian Ian Mangum, serving with the 42nd Force Support Squadron, on Maxwell Air Force Base. At the memorial ceremony, Mayor Steven Reed and Col. Mentzer dedicated 382 days toward committed inclusion efforts between the city and the base.

Through this partnership, Maxwell AFB and the city of Montgomery aim to advance inclusion and remove barriers through a program called The Freedom to Serve.

During this period, Maxwell has engaged our community and mission partners.

"The strength of the bond between the Montgomery-area community and the Air Force is incredible," said Lt. Gen. Brad Webb, commander of Air Education and Training Command, who attended the ceremony. "The Rosa Parks sculptures and the Freedom to Serve initiative should remind us all of the importance of courage in the face of adversity, working together to remove barriers to service and success, and welcoming everyone. We are better together."

AETC and community civic leaders Virginia Whitfield and Lora McClendon collaborated with Maxwell on the sculptures with the support of Troy University, the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce, the Air University Foundation, Air University Library, Alabama Power, and the 908th Airlift Wing.

Parks' courage and conviction remain an inspiration and serve as a reminder of the responsibilities for all citizens to confront injustice, uphold constitution rights, and secure the Freedom to Serve.

Beyond Maxwell and Montgomery, Parks' legacy has served as an inspiration worldwide, and the Air Force is proud to consider her a part of the family.

Twenty-Four officers have prevailed during a year of training, earning the right to become Air Force pilots.

Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 22-03 graduates at 11 a.m. today during a ceremony at the Kaye Auditorium.

Students will receive their silver pilot's wings at the ceremony, and students who excelled in their respective training tracks will be recognized.

Maj. Benjamin Hammett and 2nd Lt. Thomas Awtrey received the Air Education and Training Command Commander's Trophy for being the most outstanding students overall in their classes.

The Air Force Association Award was presented to 1st Lt. Mitchell McCulley and 2nd Lt. Megan Foster who excelled in training and typified the tenets of the association; promoting aerospace power and a strong national defense.

The distinguished graduates of Class 22-03 recognized were Hammett, Awtrey and 2nd Lt. Andrew Ellison for outstanding performance in academics, officer qualities and flying abilities.

The 52-week pilot training program begins with a six-week preflight phase of academics and physiological training to prepare students for flight. The second phase, primary training, is conducted in the single-engine, turboprop T-6A Texan II at Columbus Air Force Base, Mississippi. Students learn aircraft flight characteristics, emergency procedures, takeoff and landing procedures, aerobatics and formation flying. Students also practice night, instrument and cross country navigation flying.

Primary training takes approximately 23 weeks and includes 254.4 hours of ground training, 27.3 hours in the flight simulator and 89 hours in the T-6A aircraft.

After primary training, students select, by order of merit, advanced training in the fighter-bomber or airlift-tanker track.

Both tracks are designed to best train pilots for successful transition to their follow-on aircraft and mission.

Advanced training for the fighter track is done in the T-38C Talon, a tandem-seat, twin-engine supersonic jet. T-38 training emphasizes formation, advanced aerobatics and navigation. Training takes approximately 26 weeks and includes 381 hours of ground training, 31.6 hours in the flight simulator and 118.7 hours in the T-38C aircraft.

The airlift-tanker track uses the T-1A Jayhawk, the military version of a multi-place Beech Jet 400 business jet. Instruction centers on crew coordination and management, instrument training, cross-country flying and simulated refueling and airdrop missions. Training takes about 26 weeks and includes 185 hours of ground training, 53.6 hours in the flight simulator and 76.4 hours in the T-1A.
