The Combined Federal Campaign is something I hold value to.

When I was 12 years old, my sister, who was 2 years old at the time, got very sick. After several days at the hospital, thinking that she just had the flu, she had a seizure.

She was diagnosed with pneumococcal meningitis and was airlifted to Oakland's Children hospital. She recovered months later, but this experience has stayed with me.

I think of the families that go through this on a daily basis.

The CFC helps us donate to non-profit organizations that help families in need and research diseases.

The CFC is the official workplace giving campaign of the Federal government. The mission of the CFC is to promote and support philanthropy through a program that is employee focused, cost-efficient and effective in providing Federal employees the opportunity to improve the quality of life for all.

There are more than 18,000 organizations that allow you to give to causes like health care, medical research, disaster relief, housing, youth development and more.

Throughout the years, I have had the pleasure to know many families with special needs children. Many of them would not be here if it weren't for the unselfish acts of the donations through the CFC. Having to watch your child suffer is hardship enough. The last thing they need is to have to worry about financial burdens. This is why I donate to the CFC.

I believe all of us have a story or know someone close that could have benefited from a non-profit organization or research to cure a disease. In the upcoming weeks, take a few minutes to look into and donate to an organization that means something to you.

The 2016 CFC campaign is "Show Some Love." The CFC season for Columbus Air Force Base is from Oct. 31 - Dec. 16. Please help Columbus AFB reach our $90,000 goal.

Domestic abuse and how to find help through the Family Advocacy Program

Keep yourself safe from an abusive spouse or partner

Seek support. Talk with a friend, co-worker, relative or neighbor.

Find out about military reporting options. The military offers confidential reporting of domestic abuse so you can get the help you need without immediate command notification or law enforcement involvement. Read “Domestic Abuse: Military Reporting Options” to learn more.

Document evidence of violence. If you seek medical treatment, explain what happened. Ask the health care provider to document the incident or injuries in your medical record. Save any threatening emails or voicemails.

Plan ahead in case you need to leave on short notice. A domestic abuse victim advocate can help you create a safety plan for you and your children. This plan includes tips, such as gathering important documents in one place, getting a credit card in your own name, saving a secret fund of cash, keeping a change of clothing for yourself and your children, and keeping an extra set of car keys at a friend’s home or at work.

Gather information. Resources are available to assist with potential legal issues, such as military or civilian protective orders, counseling, shelters and resources in your community. Visit the legal assistance office on your installation for information about legal issues.

Have a safe place to go. If you feel threatened or at risk of harm, find a safe place to go, preferably somewhere unknown to your spouse. Sometimes friends and relatives aren’t the best option because your abuser will know where to find you.

Have a secret code. If you have children, come up with a secret code word or phrase to use as a signal that to leave the house and go to a specific location — such as a neighbor’s home — that you’ve arranged and practiced in advance.

Think about safety at school or child care facilities. Abusive spouses may try to take children from school and child care settings. Any restraining order or military protective order should include measures to keep your kids safe. Be sure either your children’s school or child care center is aware of your domestic situation and give them a copy of the restraining order or military protective order.

Plan your escape. Practice getting out of the house quickly without being noticed when your abuser’s not around.

Have a cell phone available to call for help. If you don’t own one, recycled cell phones that function only for 911 calls are available through domestic violence prevention programs.

Inform your employer. Let your supervisor know about your situation in case your spouse or partner shows up at your workplace.

You’re the only one who can make the decision to walk away from abusive behavior. Whether you decide to stay or go, you can get confidential help. A safety plan can save your life.

Remember, if someone’s hurting you — emotionally or physically — you’re not alone. There are people willing to listen and assist. Give a domestic abuse advocate a call to see how he or she can help.

AF engineers repair runway in Iraq

Sgt. 1st Class Robert W. Lemmons IV
Combined Joint Forces Land Component
Command – Operation Inherent Resolve

BAGHDAD — Three months ago, four U.S. Air Force engineers with the 1st Expeditionary Civil Engineer Group arrived in northern Iraq to conduct a reconnaissance mission for what would become a historic undertaking. Their mission: mitigate runway damage caused by the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant. The engineers were informed their task had never been attempted in Iraq.

The 1st ECEG took the mission anyway, and when the telltale cadence of the four turboprop engines grew louder and louder the evening of Oct. 21, they knew their hard work had paid off.

Over the last two years, ISIL severely damaged the runway at Qayyarah West Airbase – a major strategic airfield in northern Iraq’s Ninawa province. ISIL detonated explosives, used an excavator with a hammer attachment, and creating deep trenches to damage the runway in several different ways.

Logisticians deployed in support of the Combined Joint Forces Land Component Command – Operation Inherent Resolve are currently enabling Iraqi security forces (ISF) as they push to retake Mosul. To expeditiously move larger amounts of supplies to the ISF, they need larger, fixed-wing aircraft and a proper runway to get the job done.

In order for a C-130 cargo plane to land, it requires a runway that spans over 33 football fields end to end.

Maj. Jason Stevens, the 1st ECEG officer in charge of the project, detailed the project during its outset.

“We’ll be on the ground for about three weeks to fix the damage,” Stevens said. “It’s been a long time in the planning process. The guys are doing amazing work. They are making excellent progress. We are on schedule and we are moving forward every day.”

OPERATORS

difference,” Scurlock said.

One of those huge differences is the new location of the boom operator’s workplace.

“We have transitioned from laying down on your stomach or sitting at the back of the airplane, looking out a window at receiver aircraft, to sitting up front in the airplane at an air refueling operators’ station (AROS) looking through a 3-D stereoscopic vision system,” Wernecke said.

The new vision system is designed to replicate depth perception under all lighting conditions, he said.

“Aspects, such as lighting, have been designed into the AROS to make operating the boom easier,” Wernecke added. “Lighting shouldn’t play as big a part with

A concrete taxiway repair is completed by Airmen assigned to the 60th Air Mobility Wing at Travis Air Force Base, California, Aug. 19, 2016. Using similar techniques on a much larger scale in 2016, members of the 1st Expeditionary Civil Engineer Group repaired runway damage caused by Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant at Qayyarah West Airbase in northern Iraq’s Ninawa province.

During the planning process, the Airmen were trained on how to operate the newly fielded Rapid Airfield Damage Repair System and Super Kit to complete the mission. The kit consists of a comprehensive set of equipment necessary to quickly repair a damaged airstrip.

“The project was practiced and perfected in training, so when boots hit the dusty ground the mission would be in full swing,” said Staff Sgt. Tyler Charles, an engineer on the team.

“We show up, clear the debris out, get all the junk and everything out of there,” Charles said. “Then we dig down, if we have to, until we hit hard surface ground.”

the new remote vision system. They’re able to utilize cameras in such a way that conventional external lighting from the tanker looking down on the receiver doesn’t play as big a part. While operating legacy systems, you have to adjust your lights to allow the boom operator to gain depth perception in dark environments.”

Operators still fly the boom with their right hand and extend the boom with their left as with legacy tankers, but the KC-46 fly-by-wire boom system is more advanced.

“The control and operation of the boom is similar, but the boom handling qualities are improved drastically,” Scurlock said.

Scurlock and Wernecke said the KC-46 boom operators from the 418th and 370th FLTS are providing feedback to Boeing to help with training and further development of the new tanker boom system.

The engineers had to systematically identify damaged areas of the airfield, cut those pieces of concrete out, and then start from scratch from the bare ground up. After that, there is earth tamping, concrete filling and curing – a process that takes about a day to complete.

Virginia Air National Guard Master Sgt. Reid Burns, the lead NCO of the team, realizes that his job is vital to the ISF on the front lines who need supplies to continue their push toward Mosul.

A project this large takes a team to complete. The total force concept is played out on the project, bringing together qualified Airmen from the ANG, the Air Force Reserve and active-duty components.

“It makes me really proud — especially the Guard, Reserve and active-duty guys coming together, pooling our resources,” Burns said.

As if the task at hand wasn’t already difficult, the mantra “the enemy always gets a vote” came into play. Airmen had to complete the demanding task under the persistent threat of indirect fire.

“Due to our location and the threat that is here, we are wearing our full kits and our helmets at all times,” Stevens said.

This may slow the process down a bit, but did little to discourage the Airmen who recognized the value of their mission.

Stevens enjoyed the process and watched his team thrive in the face of adversity.

“When boiled down, the Airmen completed their task a lot faster than ISIL was able to complete theirs,” he said.

It took two years for ISIL to damage the airfield beyond what they believed repairable. It took a small team of 1st ECEG engineers three weeks to make it fully operational. Now the coalition can quickly supply the ISF on the front lines of Mosul, enabling the defeat of ISIL.

James focused on diversity, emerging threats, space

Staff Sgt. Jannelle McRae
Secretary of the Air Force
Public Affairs

WASHINGTON — Air Force Secretary Deborah Lee James joined the secretaries of the Army and Navy for a “conversation with the service secretaries” panel hosted by the Center for a New American Security here Oct. 24.

During the panel, James discussed the Air Force’s continued focus on diversity and inclusion, its contributions to the current counter-Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant operations, and the importance of the next presidential administration’s focus on space.

According to James, diversity and inclusion enhances the Air Force’s decision-making and operational capabilities, ultimately making Airmen more innovative and effective.

Diverse teams — people who come from different backgrounds, thought processes and disciplines tackling a problem together — bring the greatest innovation, James explained, adding that hiring diverse individuals from different walks of life into the services, whether uniformed or military, is one of the key parameters of Secretary of Defense Ash Carter’s Force of the Future initiative.

In areas such as cyberspace, the Air Force is recruiting cyber professionals from private sectors to serve part time in the Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard.

“If you can attract some of these top-notch cyber professionals in private industry to also serve part time in Guard and Reserve units, the individual can have it both ways,” James said. “They can keep their civilian job but also have the opportunity participate in a fantastic and very important mission.”

The ability to innovate and adapt to emerging threats quickly is critical in today’s security environment, she added.

This was proven during a recent event in the Middle East, where the Air Force is seeing emerging danger with respect to unmanned aerial systems.

Two weeks ago, two coalition members were killed and two were wounded by a small unmanned aerial system that had explosives. As a result, when “the Air Force, in theater, was informed that there was an unmanned aerial system in the vicinity ... we were able to bring it down ... with electronic measures,” James said, adding that it’s not necessarily the development of new things but instead taking what capabilities the Air Force already has and packaging it in a new way.

James also addressed the difficulty of advancing agendas in reference to sequestration and continuing resolutions, and she stands firm in her belief that the new presidential administration should quickly decide if the Defense Department should stay the course on its current space investments.

“Some years ago we thought space was a peaceful domain, today we recognize that it is both contested and congested by lots of satellites, debris and all sorts of things,” James said. “Space is terribly important and we have to make some decisions going forward.”

Even with these challenges, the Air Force stands ready to accept the call to provide airpower.

“If we get called upon ... make no mistake we will go and we will do the job,” she said.

Boom operators help develop new KC-46 system

Kenji Thuloweit

412th Test Wing Public Affairs

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Earlier this year in Everett, Washington, workers from Detachment 1, 418th Flight Test Squadron, and Boeing teamed up to achieve major test milestones for the KC-46A Pegasus, which resulted in the Defense Department authorizing initial production in August.

Going forward in the test program, the KC-46 will complete a robust schedule of Federal Aviation Administration and military certification flight testing, including refueling test flights, in order to achieve certification for aircraft in the Air Force and DOD inventory.

As with all aerial tankers, the aircraft requires an Airman to operate the refueling boom that transfers gas to receiver aircraft.

To date, boom operators from Edwards Air Force Base are the only Airmen to have operated the boom on the KC-46A and are paving the way for future testing and training with the new system.

“When you compare the KC-135, a tanker that was developed in the 50s and uses a lot of 1940s’ technology when it comes to the boom system, and you think about the new systems that we’re dealing with today in the KC-46, it’s a huge difference,” Scurlock said.

“The initial cadre of boom operators was selected from the test boom cadre here at Edwards,” said Senior Master Sgt. Scott Scurlock, a 370th Flight Test Squadron boom operator. “You had to be a test boom operator to be considered for the initial KC-46 developmental test cadre; this is a test program, and the KC-46 test organization in Seattle, Washington, is a detachment of the 418th Flight Test Squadron.”

Scurlock said Edwards AFB has three qualified KC-46A boom operators at the 370th FLTS and five active-duty operators assigned to the Det. 1, 418th FLTS, in Washington.

He and Master Sgt. Aaron Ray, of the 370th FLTS, are the first two Airmen in the Air Force Reserve to be qualified on the KC-46A. They have recently been joined by Tech. Sgt. Colin Wernecke, who transferred to the Reserve after spending three years with the 418th FLTS.

The 370th FLTS is an Air Force Reserve unit with the mission of providing aerial refueling test support to the Edwards 412th Test Wing.

The three KC-46A test boom operators went through formal initial cadre training consisting of classroom academics taught by Boeing, simulator time and flight training. All are seasoned veterans of the legacy KC-135 Stratotanker and KC-10 Extender.

“When you compare the KC-135, a tanker that was developed in the 50s and uses a lot of 1940s’ technology when it comes to the boom system, and you think about the new systems that we’re dealing with today in the KC-46, it’s a huge

Tricare changes

Express Scripts will add Walgreens and Kroger to the TRICARE retail specialty select pharmacy network starting Dec. 1. CVS and CVS pharmacies in Target stores will no longer be in the network.

What you need to know:

- If a CVS pharmacy is currently filling your specialty prescription drugs, you must move them to a network pharmacy by Dec. 1. Otherwise, you will have to pay the full retail price for your drugs.

- You can transfer your specialty drugs to Rite-Aid or Walmart at any time, since they’re part of the specialty select network.

Convenient ways to transfer prescriptions to a new pharmacy:

- Take your prescription drug bottles to the new pharmacy. The pharmacist there will contact your old pharmacy.

- Call your new pharmacy and have them get your prescription drug information from your old pharmacy.

- Ask your doctor to send your prescription drug information to your new pharmacy.

- Check to see if your prescription drugs, including any specialty drugs, are eligible for TRICARE Pharmacy Home Delivery by calling 855-778-1417.

BLAZE Hangar Tails: C-17 Globemaster

Mission

The C-17 Globemaster III is the newest, most flexible cargo aircraft to enter the airlift force. The C-17 is capable of rapid strategic delivery of troops and all types of cargo to main operating bases or directly to forward bases in the deployment area. The aircraft can perform tactical airlift and airdrop missions and can transport litters and ambulatory patients during aeromedical evacuations when required. The inherent flexibility and performance of the C-17 force improve the ability of the total airlift system to fulfill the worldwide air mobility requirements of the United States.

General Characteristics

Primary Function: Cargo and troop transport
Prime Contractor: Boeing Company
Power Plant: Four Pratt & Whitney F117-PW-100 turbofan engines
Thrust: 40,440 pounds, each engine
Wingspan: 169 feet 10 inches (to winglet tips) (51.75 meters)
Length: 174 feet (53 meters)
Height: 55 feet 1 inch (16.79 meters)
Cargo Compartment: length, 88 feet (26.82 meters); width, 18 feet (5.48 meters); height, 12 feet 4 inches (3.76 meters)

Speed: 450 knots at 28,000 feet (8,534 meters) (Mach .74)
Service Ceiling: 45,000 feet at cruising speed (13,716 meters)

Range: Global with in-flight refueling
Crew: Three (two pilots and one loadmaster)

Aeromedical Evacuation Crew: A basic crew of five (two flight nurses and three medical technicians) is added for aeromedical evacuation missions. Medical crew may be altered as required by the needs of patients

Maximum Peacetime Takeoff Weight: 585,000 pounds (265,352 kilograms)

Load: 102 troops/paratroops; 36 litter and 54 ambulatory patients and attendants; 170,900 pounds (77,519 kilograms) of cargo (18 pallet positions)

Unit Cost: $202.3 million (fiscal 1998 constant dollars)

Date Deployed: June 1993

Inventory: Active duty, 187; Air National Guard, 12; Air Force Reserve, 14

Background

The C-17 made its maiden flight on Sept. 15, 1991, and the first production model was delivered to Charleston Air Force Base, now known as Joint Base Charleston, South Carolina, on June 14, 1993. The first squadron of C-17s, the 17th Airlift Squadron, was declared operationally ready Jan. 17, 1995. The Air Force originally programmed to buy 120 C-17s. Current budget plans increased the total number to 223 aircraft.

The C-17 is operated by Air Mobility Command at Travis AFB, California; Dover AFB, Delaware; Joint Base Lewis-McChord, Washington; Joint Base Charleston, South Carolina, and Joint Base McGuire-Dix-Lakehurst, New Jersey.

The Air National Guard flies C-17s from the 172d Airlift Wing, Jackson, Mississippi, and the 105th Airlift Wing, Stewart ANGB, New York. Additionally, Air Force Materiel Command operates two C-17s at Edwards AFB, California, and Pacific Air Forces operates aircraft at Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson, Alaska, and Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam, Hawaii.

The Air Force Reserve Command operates aircraft at March Air Reserve Base, California, and Wright Patterson AFB, Ohio. Air Education and Training Command has 17 aircraft at Altus AFB, Oklahoma.

is mandatory for newly arrived active-duty and civilian personnel. Spouses are encouraged to attend. The orientation is held at the Columbus Club. For more information or to register call 434-2790.

Military Life Cycle

The Military Life Cycle workshop from 1-2 p.m. Nov. 15 allows the VA contractors to explain to service members, whether first term, separating, retiring or a veteran, what services the VA offers and what they are able to provide throughout the member's military career and how to apply for benefits. For more information or to register call 434-2790.

Pre-separation Counseling

This counseling is a mandatory briefing for personnel separating or retiring, to be completed at least 90 days prior to separation. It may be completed up to 12 months prior to separation or retirement. The counseling is held daily at 8:30 a.m. It takes approximately 60 minutes. Please contact A&FRC, 434-2839/434-2790 for more information.

Pre, Post Deployment Tour Brief

These briefings are mandatory briefings for active-duty personnel who are either deploying or returning from deployment or a remote tour. The briefings are held daily at the A&FRC. Pre-deployment is at 9:30 a.m., and post-deployment is at 1:30 p.m. Please contact A&FRC, 434-2839/434-2790 for more information.

Survivor-Benefit Plan

Are you nearing military retirement? The one decision you will need to make before you retire involves participation in the Survivor Benefit Plan. As with all good decision-making, you need to know the facts before you can make a sound decision, and be wary of anyone telling you they can offer you a better deal. Always get the true facts about the SBP before making up your mind. Additional details are available by calling (662) 434-2720.

Military and Family Life Consultant Program

The MFLC counselors provide non-medical counseling to help Airmen (both single and married), their spouses and other family members to cope with stressful situations created by deployments, reintegration, and life challenges such as martial issues, parenting, career stress and anger. All consultants are licensed mental health providers. Counselors can meet either on or off base. There is no charge for services and appointments can usually be made within one to two days. To contact the MFLC, call 662-364-0504.

Volunteer Opportunities

If you are interested in volunteering please contact the Airman & Family Readiness Center. We have volunteer opportunities located throughout the base for a one-time event, special events, or on a continual basis. Volunteers are needed on base at the Youth Center, Child Development Center, Library, Golf Course, Medical Clinic, Chapel, Airman Attic, Thrift Store, the Retiree Activities office and many others. For more information please call A&FRC at 434-2790.

Air Force Recovery Coordination Program

The Recovery Coordination Program streamlines and improves the way care and support are delivered to wounded, ill, and injured Airmen and their families. The RCP provides the support of a Recovery Care Coordinator who guides the Airman and family along their road to recovery. Those eligible include wounded, ill and injured Airmen who: (1) have a serious illness or injury (2) are unlikely to return to duty within a specified amount of time (3) may be medically separated from the military. Additional details are available by contacting the Columbus AFB RCC at DSN: 493-3399, Office: 334-953-3399 or tim.griggs.1.ctr@us.af.mil.

Personal Financial Readiness

Make the most of your money. Contact DeLores Sherman, Personal Financial Counselor, for an appointment at 426-2527, or 434-2790. She can help manage finances, resolve financial problems, and reach long-term goals such as getting an education, buying a home and planning for retirement.

Since 1979, the U.S. military has provided tactical support and advising in Afghanistan, with the Air Force fully engaged for the past 15 years.

The goal to train, prepare and mentor Afghan counterparts has been consistent, though operation names and mission objectives have changed.

Fostering better methods to effectively engage, communicate, and cooperate with the host nation has been a focus in recent years.

Positive progress has been achieved through the inter-service program, Afghanistan-Pakistan Hands. AFPAK Hands receive extensive language and cultural education culminating in a year-long deployment. This method takes long strides in creating relationships, establishing trust, and forging mutual respect; all critical for accomplishing mission goals in the challenging cultural and political landscape of Afghanistan and Pakistan.

The 81st Fighter Squadron approaches its mission in the same spirit. We are partners in the formidable task of training and developing the first generation of Afghan A-29 Super Tucano pilots and maintainers. We understand the importance of the Afghans taking to the skies to demoralize and defeat terrorist organizations.

Our students are selected, vetted and participate in months of training before arriving at Moody Air Force Base, Georgia, where they spend a year training and honing their craft. This is where the relationship begins.

During their year in Georgia, we work and train side by side, becoming familiar with names and faces and exchanging information, ideas and stories. Camaraderie forms, while trust and respect develops.

However, unlike the AFPAK Hands program, the relationship does not end after the year is up. Our students return home as pilots and maintainers, while our Airmen deploy on a rotational basis to Afghanistan to further mentor and advise. The relationships formed in training are instrumental as the Afghans test their skills in combat operations.

The lessons learned can be distilled into a couple of simple concepts: respect and trust. The relationships that foster these attributes are often the real difference between success and failure. These same concepts that are applicable in our homes and our communities are foundational to our success in building a partner nation's Air Force.

Twenty-one officers have prevailed during a year of training, earning the right to become Air Force pilots.

Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 17-01 graduates at 10 a.m. today during a ceremony at the Kaye Auditorium. Maj. Gen. James Barkley, Mobilization Assistant to the Commander Air Education and Training Command, Joint Base San Antonio-Randolph, Texas, is the graduation guest speaker.

Students will receive their silver pilot's wings at the ceremony, and students who excelled in their respective training tracks are recognized.

2nd Lt. Nicholas Kuzjak, T-38, and 2nd Lt. Arthur Eisberg, T-1, received the Air Education and Training Command Commander's Trophy for being the most outstanding students overall in their classes.

The Air Force Association Award was presented to 2nd Lt. Nicholas Kuzjak, T-38, and 2nd Lt. Charles Powell, T-1. The award is presented to a graduate in each flight who excelled in training and typified the tenets of the association; promoting aerospace power and a strong national defense.

2nd Lt. Nicholas Kuzjak, T-38, 2nd Lt. Arthur Eisberg, T-1, and 2nd Lt. Adam Gill, T-1, were named the distinguished graduates of SUPT Class 17-01.

The 52-week pilot training program begins with a six-week preflight phase of academics and physiological training to prepare students for flight. The second phase, primary training, is conducted in the single-engine, turboprop T-6A Texan II at Columbus AFB, Miss. Students learn aircraft flight characteristics, emergency procedures, takeoff and landing procedures, aerobatics and formation flying. Students also practice night, instrument and cross country navigation flying.

Primary training takes approximately 23 weeks and includes 254.4 hours of ground training, 27.3 hours in the flight simulator and 89 hours in the T-6A aircraft.

After primary training, students select, by order of merit, advanced training in the fighter-bomber or airlift-tanker track.

Both tracks are designed to best train pilots for successful transition to their follow-on aircraft and mission.

Advanced training for the fighter track is done in the T-38C Talon, a tandem-seat, twin-engine supersonic jet. T-38 training emphasizes formation, advanced aerobatics and navigation. Training takes approximately 26 weeks and includes 381 hours of ground training, 31.6 hours in the flight simulator and 118.7 hours in the T-38C aircraft.

The airlift-tanker track uses the T-1A Jayhawk, the military version of a multi-place Beech Jet 400 business jet. Instruction centers on crew coordination and management, instrument training, cross-country flying and simulated refueling and airdrop missions. Training takes about 26 weeks and includes 185 hours of ground training, 53.6 hours in the flight simulator and 76.4 hours in the T-1A.

Each class is partnered with business or civic organizations during their year of training. This program is designed to foster closer ties between the community and Columbus AFB. Today, each student will be given a set of pilot wings with their names engraved on the back as a token of good luck from their partners. SUPT Class 17-01 pilot partners are Galloway, Chandler & McKinney and Neel-Schaffer Inc.
